W.B. Reduso CORSETS

The Perfect Corset for Large Women

It places over-developed women on the same basis as their slender sisters. It tapers off the bust, flattens the abdomen, and absolutely reduces the hips from 1 to 5 inches. Not a harness—not a cumbersome affair, no torturing straps, but the most scientific example of corsetry, boned in such a manner as to give the wearer absolute freedom of movement.

New W. B. Reduso No. 770 for large tall women. Made of white coutil. Hove supporters front and sides, also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 30. Price $3.00.
New W. B. Reduso No. 772 for large short women. Is the same as No. 770, except that the bust is somewhat lower all around. Made of white coutil. Hove supporters front and sides. Also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 30. Price $3.00.

Ask any dealer anywhere to show you the New W. B. "Hip-subsiding" corsets from $1.00 to $3.00 per pair.

School Data.

In Kentucky there are fewer number of children of the legal school age in the schools of the State than there are children outside the schools. The number of children who do not attend any school at all is larger than the number of children in school. This rather startling bit of information is given quite casually in some of the statistics which are being prepared for the annual report of Prof. J. G. Crabbe, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. This statement, showing that there are in average daily attendance in the schools of the State a total of 311,192 children, and the number of those not attending any school is 417,664, will be used during the coming session of the Legislature as an argument for better schools and school laws in Kentucky.

Weeding Out the Dead Material.
"We talk about reviving the spirit of the arena in our town."
"Under 17"

"Sure. Some day we are going to herd all of our mossbacked near citizens together and have a grand killing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Want Better Street.

Senator Thomas A. Combs and Representative William F. Klair will on the first day of the session of the Legislature in January offer a bill providing for special election for the citizens of Lexington to vote on a proposed $500,000 bond issue for the reconstruction of brick streets in that city.

Files Deposition.

Miss Anna Thornton, notary public, of this city, filed Tuesday in the office of Circuit Clerk Rogers, in Lexington, the depositions of the defendant in the case of Mrs. Maggie Rogers McClintock vs. James D. McClintock, which is a suit for divorce pending in the Fayette Circuit Court. The depositions were taken at the office of Judge Denison in Dundon, at the court house, Thursday, Oct. 14, 1909. Eighteen witnesses appeared before the notary and the testimony covers about 350 pages of typewritten matter. The depositions are handsomely bound in cloth covers and the work itself is a model in neatness and general appearance. The plaintiff was present in person and represented by her attorneys, Robert C. Talbot, of Paris, and George C. Webb, of Lexington. The defendant was present in person and represented by Judge Denis Dundon.

WORK OF THE GENEALOGIST

His Compensation Depends on His Being Able to Get Up a Really Handsome Family Tree.

The principal workers from the outside in the library of congress are those who are hunting up genealogies. They begin early and work late at this task, and they are paid variously, according to the genealogies they work out, declares the Washington Herald.

"To trace down an ordinary genealogy," said one of these researchers the other day, "I receive $20, but if I am able to procure a real, handsome genealogy with a duke or a baron or a touch of royalty in it, then I get almost any price my conscience allows me to charge. One American family—how don't be curious, because the family happens to live outside of Washington—gave me $500 for getting up a lovely family tree for them, which included the privilege of using a coat of arms with royal quarterings."

I believe they were called down for using this coat of arms in England, and so they lay it aside when they are in Europe; but in America it appears in great splendor on their stationery, carriage doors and table linen, and it is said the women of the family have it embroidered on their lingerie, being unaware of the fact that the distaff side of the family are not entitled to the coat of arms, but only the quarterings of their father's and mother's arms on a lozenge. Don't pity the poor genealogist, for we are probably as well paid for our work as any of those who must work for a living."

Proposed New Laws.

A bill to substitute the electric chair for the gallows in Kentucky and providing that all executions shall take place in the State Prison at Frankfort, instead of the county jails, has been drawn by Jailer-elect John R. Pfanz, of Louisville, and will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature by State Senator Herman D. Newcomb, of Louisville. Jailer Pfanz will also father another bill giving "time off" for good behavior to prisoners in county jails.

The Lure of the Arctic.
Polar life brings strange revelations. A man who is a model of amiability at home is a savage in those high latitudes, where Mother Nature and humanity seem bent on revealing their crudest characteristics. When a man goes to the arctic first he dislikes it. If he is caught there one winter he vows to himself that he will never repeat the adventure. Yet when he gets back home he discovers that the "white silence" has a compelling fascination. I have never known a man who could resist the chance to go again, even at a financial loss. After twenty years of experience, if another opportunity came to me, it is doubtful whether any consideration would prevent my taking up the work again. Once the charm of those long months of daylight, the mysterious deathly silence of those long nights, the white glare of that brilliant moonlight across trackless wastes of snow and ice, has been felt a man is unable to resist the siren call of the north that has become more to him than family, home, friends or money. Gladly he takes his life in his hands and fares forth again into those frozen seas.—Captain Edwin Coffin of Ziegler Polar Expedition in National Magazine.

Bear Ague.

"Speaking of 'buck fever,'" said a survey official, "reminds me of 'bear ague.' Never heard of it, eh? Well, I first encountered it in Wrangell narrows, Alaska, a number of years ago. We were on the old surveying steamer Patterson.

"Just as we rounded a point of land not more than 200 yards distant a big black bear was seen on the beach looking at us. Eight men took up rifles at once and were about to shoot when I told them to wait and fire all at once in a volley when I gave the order. They all took careful beads on the beast. 'Ready, fire!' I shouted.

"There was a rattle of musketry as the eight pieces were discharged, and every one looked to see the animal's death throes. There was the bear running up the hill as lively as a jack rabbit. Not a shot had hit him. Bear ague, that's all. Every man's hand was trembling so he couldn't hit a house. Buck fever's nowhere along side of it."—San Francisco Call.

Her Vocal Selection.

A wedding was recently held which was of the fashionable kind, and there were all sorts of preparations and frills. Among the "features" was a song by a baritone singer of considerable local renown, and just what he was to warble was a matter of considerable discussion.

A little sister six years old of the bride took much interest in the program. "Sis," she said, "I want to sing at your wedding."

"No, dear; you can't sing," was the rejoinder.

"But I can, and I want to," she pleaded.

"What would you sing?" her father asked her.

"Heaven, Look With Pity!" was her rejoinder, and her father hasn't got over it yet.—Kansas City Journal.

Ladies First!

"Scratch a southerner and you find a knightly soul" might be said to be one of the morals of the Chicago Record-Herald story below. The second moral is reasonably obvious:

"What is the reason," began the irritated traveler from the north, "that the trains in this part of the country are always behind time? I have never seen one yet that ran according to its schedule."

"That, suh," replied the dignified Georgian, "is a mattah that is easily explained. It is due to southern chivalry, suh."

"Southern chivalry! Where does that come in?"

"You see, suh, the trains are always late in this country because they wait for the ladies. God bless them!"

The Patient Man.

Mr. Henpeck had hesitated a long while about doing this bold thing, but he felt that now was the time or never. "Dear," he said, in a very timid voice, "I wish you wouldn't call me 'Leo' any more."

"Why not?" demanded his wife explosively. "Leo is your given name."

"I know, my dear, but it makes my friends laugh when you call me that. I was thinking you might call me 'Job,' just for a pet name."—Catholic Standard and Times.

One Beauty of Classical Music.

Miss Gush—Do you like classical music, Mr. Sourdopp?

Mr. Sourdopp—Yes.

Miss Gush—Oh, I am so glad! Do you not find it in great inspiration, sublime thought and true beauty?

Mr. Sourdopp—Not exactly. I like it because no blithering idiot can beat time to it with his foot.

Matrimony Made Easy.

"Can a fellow marry comfortably on a salary of $500 a year?" asked the young man.

"Sure, he can," replied the sage of Sageville—"that is, provided he has saved his last year's salary and can get his employer to pay the next year's in advance."—Chicago News.

Not Games of Chance.

The Vicar—Is it true, Samuel, that your father allows games of chance to be played at your house? The Boy—There ain't no chance about it, sur—they all cheats!—London Opinion.

Circumstantial Evidence.

"De Villiers has quit scorching." "Machine all in?" "Nope; he's dead." "Oh, that doesn't prove anything."—Harper's Weekly.
